TRANSLATION

In layman terms Translation can be described as a conversion of sentences from one language to another. But a professional expert can only know the fundamentals of translation where it is not only the conversion of a language, but also involves the inculcation of all the contextual and stylistic changes which is required to make the localized language more real and accurate. Translation is more to adapt the text into the cultural understanding of the target users.

Latest Advancement in the field of Information technology brought a revolution in the traditional ways of translation. There are numerous CAT tools like Trados, Wordfast etc available in the market which has made translation of millions of words possible in short turnaround time, with 100% consistency throughout the document. It also helps to create translation memory which can be used for the next translation cycle.

The biggest challenge of the language industry is to protect the language from machine translated output which generates poor, non contextual junk translation.

Word Edge understands all the nitty-gritty involved in the language localization and provides its client with a translation service which is high in quality and completely done by human translators who are natives.

Whether it is a book or a journal, magazine, pamphlets, brochure, document or even an entire website, we are proud to consider ourselves capable of translating any given item into any desired language. With the help of our expert and qualified team who are proficient in all the latest technologies, we are able to deliver the best quality work in the industry.

PROOF READING/EDITING

Translated content cannot be accurate if it doesn't go through another eye of perfectionist. Proofreading/Editing helps to eliminate the errors which occur while translation. Translated content is cross-checked for stylistic changes, any syntax or typo errors, formatting issues etc. We select proofreaders who are having high academic qualification with vast experience in domain specific editing so that any erroneous text won't be skipped before the final delivery.

WE guarantee you high quality translation. All the translated documents are reviewed by our language leaders before the final delivery to the client.

Latest CAT tools are being used for translation and final QA checks.

Our End product = High quality translation = Satisfied/ Happy Clients
